Section 1: Program Overview

Action Inc. is a non-profit Community Action Agency that is “dedicated to developing pathways out of poverty through innovative, community-based collaborative solutions.” Headquartered in Butte, MT, and incorporated in 1965, Action Inc. provides important services to low-income citizens in a six-county area, and advocates for community level change on behalf of the area’s most vulnerable population. With programs like Head Start, Low Income Energy Assistance, Weatherization, Housing Choice Vouchers, Summer Nutrition for school-aged children, Housing First vouchers for the homeless, and Youth Employment and Training, Action Inc. strives to ensure that economically disadvantaged citizens have safe, warm, affordable housing and a pathway out of poverty. With an annual budget of $5.5 million, Action Inc. has a workforce of 120, and serves 6,000 people per year.

The agency was born out of the “Community Action” movement, which was taking place in Eastern American cities, and focused on the elimination of poverty. The movement ultimately became part of the American policy agenda under President Lyndon Baines Johnson. In his inaugural address to Congress in 1964, the President said, “this administration today, here and now, declares an unconditional war on poverty In America!”

In the same year, President Johnson’s “War on Poverty” was officially launched by Congress, when members passed the Economic Opportunity Act that held, “it is therefore the policy of the United States to eliminate the paradox of poverty in the mist of plenty in this nation, by opening to everyone, the opportunity to live in decency and dignity.” The act created new education, training, and work experience programs including the Job Corps, Neighborhood Youth Corps, and Volunteers in Service to America (VISTA).

Community Action Agencies opened across the country and were funded directly by the Federal Government. Their early mandate was to craft and implement local solutions to poverty. They were given the flexibility to use the federal funding to Execute local ideas. By 1968, there were over 1,600 independent Community Action Agencies across America, who served as innovators of new programs to end poverty.

As early as 1969, programs like Head Start, Family Planning, Foster Grandparents, Summer Youth, Senior Centers, Community Health Centers, and others had been launched. Home Weatherization and Energy Assistance programs came later in the 1970’s.

In its early years, Action Inc. served only Butte, and focused its attention on Children by launching the Head Start program, which was aimed at giving preschool-aged children with economic disadvantages a strong social and educational foundation for later learning success. It also focused on providing a neighborhood center in Butte that served as a social center for seniors who might otherwise be isolated in their homes, and for economically disadvantaged youth who, in the absence of proper supervision and positive social environments, needed a summer or after-school activity center.

While Community Action had a strong beginning under the Johnson administration, later presidential administrations would prove less supportive. The Nixon, Ford, and Regan years (1970's to 1980's) were marked by attempts to substantially diminish, if not eliminate, funding for Community Action programs. Policies during the period resulted in three major changes. The first was a move away from locally crafted initiatives to funding of federally-crafted programs, that were applied, like templates, the same way in every community. This change removed the innovative and grass-roots impetus of Community Action. The second change was the decentralization of Community Action. The Office of Economic Opportunity, which oversaw funding and programs related to Community Action, was dismantled. Programs and related funding were shifted to various other federal departments. For example, Head Start was transferred to the Department of Health and Human Services. This action diluted the role of Community Action in the war on poverty in America. Finally, funding was Replaced by a general-purpose block grant called the Community Services Block Grant (CSBG). Blocks of funding were through the states, giving administrative control to states and significantly reducing overall funding to the movement.

Today, core funding for Community Action Agencies, including Action Inc., continues to come from the CSBG, which remains a state administered program. An approximate 1,200 agencies across America serve 99% of the nation's counties and leverage an average of $35.00 for every block grant dollar they receive.

The Action Inc. Head Start Program provides comprehensive child development services to 186 eligible preschool children and their families in Silver Bow County. The program operates 6 classrooms, 4 hours per day, 4 days per week. 4 other classrooms have extended days and hours. These classrooms operate 6.5 hours per day, from early September through early June. There are two Head Start locations in Butte—1000 S. Arizona St. and 100 N. Clark.

Introduction:

Action Inc. is one of ten Community Action agencies operating in the state of Montana. It serves a six-county area in the Southwest Region of Montana, that includes Beaverhead, Deer Lodge, Granite, Madison, Powell, and Silver Bow Counties. The District covers a land area of 14,631 square miles, which represents 10% of the state’s total land area. The map below provides an illustration of the District’s service area.

The population of the service area is an estimated 71,189, which represents 6.8% of Montana’s total population (source: U.S. Census Bureau; 2016 Population estimates). Although the population has grown slightly, the area’s proportion of the state population declined slightly since 2010. Butte-Silver Bow County is the most densely populated county in the service area, comprising 48% of the total population, and is home to the largest city in the region-Butte. Deer Lodge County and Beaver head County both comprise 13% of the region’s population, followed by Madison (10%), Powell (10%), and Granite (5%) counties.

Purpose of the Community Assessment

The primary purpose of the Community Assessment is to serve as a tool in decision making regarding Head Start program planning, development, and evaluation. This Assessment will assist program staff and the Head Start Policy Council in identifying current trends in the communities, identified needs of families and children in poverty, and available resources for families as well as gaps in resources.

As specified in the Head Start Performance Standards, Action Inc. will use this Community Assessment information to:

1. Help determine the philosophy and long and short-range program objectives;
2. Determine the type of component services that are most needed and the program options that will be implemented;
3. Determine the recruitment area that will be served;
4. Determine appropriate locations for centers;
5. Set criteria that define the type of children and families who will be given priority for recruitment and selection.

Methodology

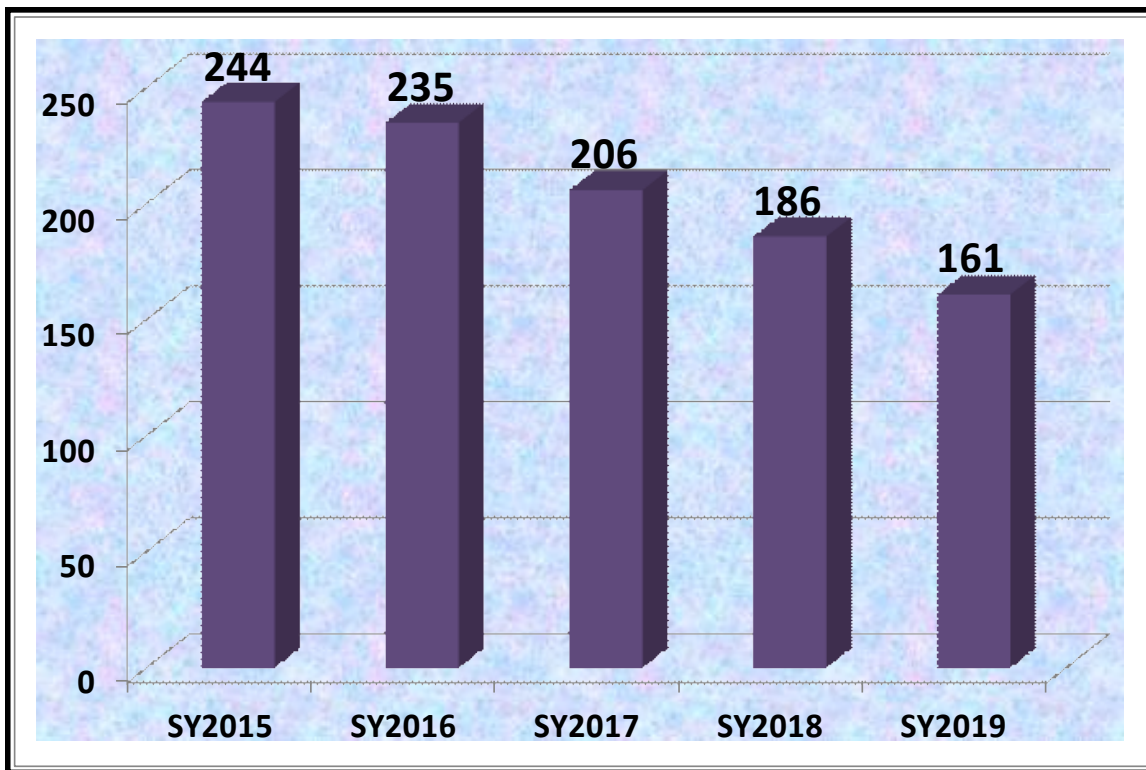

Data was reviewed from the following sources, including the U.S. Census Bureau, Montana Kids Count - 2017 Data Book, 2017 Program Information Report, School Readiness Data Analysis, Montana Department of Labor and Industry, Family Engagement Data Analysis, and the 2019 Parent Surveys.

Community Needs:

Action Inc., a Community Action Agency serving a six-county region of Southwest Montana, assesses needs for poor and low-income people in its service area triennially, with updates to demographic and socioeconomic data done biennially. The assessment includes three levels of information gathering and analysis. First, Action Inc. conducts a mail survey of people who have received a service or services from Action Inc. in the twelve months preceding the survey. Second, population level data is gathered and analyzed to understand the extent to which citizens are subsisting with inadequate incomes, which may impede their access to basic necessities. Finally, focus group meetings are conducted in each county. The purpose of the meetings is to gather information about needs of poor and low-income people in each county from the perspective of community leaders, service providers, and citizens at large.

The key facts and findings contained in this assessment are included on the following page.

KEY FACTS AND FINDINGS

ECONOMIC CONDITIONS

Wages in all of the service area counties are well below the national average.

1,500 people are unemployed in the service area, down from 2,275 in 2013.

Median Household Income is lower than the national median in all six counties of the service area.

POVERTY & LOW-INCOME STATUS

There are over 11,488 people (17.07) subsisting below the federal poverty line in the six-county region of Southwest Montana; the rate is higher than both the Montana and national rates and down from 18.24 in 2013.

38 of the population (26,000 people) subsists below 200 of the federal poverty line which places them in 'low income status'.

Regionally, an average of 8,615 people in 2015 received SNAP assistance; the number increased by 55 between 2009 and 2014 and decreased by 9 between 2014 and 2015.

A 2015 survey of people receiving services from Action Inc. indicated that heat assistance, dental assistance and prescription drug assistance were their most important needs.

Action Inc. served 5,754 people in 2016 or 22 of low-income people in the region.

Half of school children in the service area are eligible for free and reduced lunch.

HEALTHCARE ACCESS

With the advent of the Affordable Care Act, the number of people under 65 without health insurance in the service area decreased by 33 since 2010. Still, 22 of low-income people in the area are without health insurance, according to Census estimates.

NEIGHBORHOODS

High concentrations of poverty in blighted neighborhoods in Butte-Silver Bow County, the region's population center, are contributing to a cycle of intergenerational poverty.

ACCESS TO ACTION INC. SERVICES

Action Inc. served only 22 of low-income people in the services area through its programs and only 18 of people eligible for heat assistance, pointing to the need for effective outreach work.

HOUSING

In the service area, over 8,000 households are experiencing a housing cost burden-48.4 of renters and 19.6 of homeowners; these rates have increased significantly since 2000.

283 people are on the waiting list for Section 8 rental assistance in the region.

The rate of homeownership among the lower income cohort in the region dropped to 50 compared with 81 for the middle and upper-income group.

The rate of homelessness in Silver Bow County the region's population center, is estimated to be about 0.5 or an approximate 164 people.

AGING POPULATION

The number of senior citizens is projected to grow by 42 by 2030, going from an estimated 13,483 to over 19,000. 31 of the region's senior citizens have low-incomes.

YOUTH & CHILD WELL-BEING

There are factors at work in the region that put children and youth at risk of underachievement and future poverty.

21.36 of the region's children are so materially poor, normal health and development may be at risk; the rate is higher than the Montana and national rates.

57 of children in the region are low-income.

Graduation rates for economically disadvantaged youth are significantly lower than the general student population.

The number of out-of-home placements due to child neglect or abuse increased 67 between 2013 and 2016 going from 149 children to 249 children.

BEHAVIORAL HEALTH

Suicide rates in the services area are among the highest in Montana, a state that has for 35 years had one of the highest suicide rates in the nation.

OVERARCHING CONSIDERATIONS

Prolonged low family income can be expected to lead to a more ingrained feeling of social exclusion, which may also have more lasting consequences.

American children are less likely to move out of the bottom of the income distribution than children in five other industrialized nations.
